

National Trust

Wild flower spotter's guide

During the summer wild flowers bring vibrant colour to meadows, grasslands and verges. Not only are these flowers beautiful to look at they also support bees, butterflies and other pollinators.

Discover more of Britain's Wild Flowers

How many wild flowers can you spot? Use this spotter's guide to identify the plants you see when you're out exploring the countryside.

Lady's bedstraw
Galium verum

Common fumitory
Fumaria officinalis

Eyebright
Euphrasia officinalis

Bird's-foot trefoil
Lotus corniculatus

Yarrow
Achillea millefolium

Betony
Stachys officinalis

Red campion
Silene dioica

Meadowsweet
Filipendula ulmaria

This activity has been designed so that it can be done safely in your house, garden or local National Trust place, so please take part responsibly and follow government guidance on social distancing.

Illustration: © Rosamond Richardson
© National Trust 2020. The National Trust is a registered charity no. 205846