

How the landscape might look

The following illustrations will give you an idea of how the new planting design will look in the landscape.

A detailed landscape plan of the proposed planting.

The conservation led landscape design balances a number of elements. It seeks to improve the legibility and understanding of the historic designed landscape, in an area that has suffered from incremental and poorly planned alterations over many years. It also creates a strong landscape framework to inform and integrate the current tea-room and extension into the designed landscape, ultimately creating a 21st century design that is inspired by the characteristics of the 18th century garden.

A visual representation of an areal view of the landscape with the proposed building and planting in place.