

50

things to do before you're

11³/₄

No.9 Eat a picnic in the wild

Find the perfect picnic spot

You don't have to go far, your back garden can be just as fun as going further away. Pick a sunny day when it's unlikely to rain – no one likes soggy sandwiches! Are there other adventures you can have along the way? Could you try out more of our '50 things' activities, like making some wild art or getting to know a tree?

Top Tip:

After you've eaten lie down on your picnic blanket and look at the sky - what can you see? Try spotting characters and animals in the clouds – cloud watching is no. 33 in our '50 things'.

What's for lunch?

It's time to raid the fridge!
It's amazing what you can create with just a few ingredients. Sandwiches, salads, pasta and fruit all make for a tasty lunch.

Take inspiration from nature and try making a picnic using fruit and vegetables that are in season. In spring you could add peas and green beans to cooked pasta or make a salad using new potatoes.