National Trust Bibliography

Introduction

Over many years a great deal has been published about the properties and collections in the care of the National Trust, yet to date no single record of those publications has been established. The following Bibliography is a first attempt to do just that, and provides a starting point for those who want to learn more about the properties and collections in the National Trust’s care.

Inevitably this list will have gaps in it. Do please let us know of additional material that you feel might be included, or where you have spotted errors in the existing entries. All feedback to publishing@nationaltrust.org.uk would be very welcome.

Please note the Bibliography does not include minor references within large reference works, such as the Encyclopaedia Britannica, or to guidebooks published by the National Trust.

How to use

The Bibliography is arranged by property, and then alphabetically by author. For ease of use, clicking on a hyperlink will take you from a property name listed on the Contents Page to the page for that property. ‘Return to Contents’ hyperlinks will take you back to the contents page.

To search by particular terms, such as author or a theme, please make use of the ‘Find’ function, in the ‘Edit’ menu (or use the keyboard shortcut ‘[Ctrl] + [F]’).

Locating copies of books, journals or specific articles

Most of the books, and some journals and magazines, can of course be found in any good library. For access to rarer titles a visit to one of the country’s copyright libraries may be necessary.

A great many articles can now be found online, particularly via portals such as JSTOR (Journal Storage). Access to this – www.jstor.org – and other online resources such as the Oxford Dictionary of National Biography – www.oxforddnb.com – is now provided free by many public and university libraries. Contact your local public library for more details.

First published online at: www.nationaltrust.org.uk/bibliography/ in August 2010.
