

Lyme

Lyme sits in 570 hectares (1,400 acres) of parkland, with glorious views across Manchester and the Cheshire Plain. The lavish interiors of the house reflect the life of a great estate, focussing on Lyme’s fascinating history during the regency period, under the stewardship of Thomas Legh. An intrepid traveller and collector, Thomas was also the architect of the revival of the estate during the first part of the 18th century. In more recent times, Lyme has featured as ‘Pemberley’ in the BBC adaptation of Pride and Prejudice starring Colin Firth. Lyme’s gardens with the Reflection Lake, Orangery and Rose Garden are a wonderful place to relax and stroll.

Thomas’ stories are brought to life through a range of events including:

- Dress up in Regency costume in the wardrobe department*
- Play garden games on the West Terrace
- Play billiards in the long gallery
- Follow the route around the house as originally designed by Thomas Legh and Lewis Wyatt
- Enjoy a private tour of the house and gardens*
- Take Afternoon Tea in the Salting Room Tea Parlour and the beautiful Wyatt Garden.

Please note

We are starting a major new project at Lyme in 2020 to improve the car parking, catering, retail and facilities for our visitors. This will affect the car park and the Timber Yard areas mainly. We apologise in advance for any inconvenience this may cause. Thank you for your support while we undertake this essential and exciting work.

Accessibility

Lyme is a hilly location and there are a number of flights of steps in the garden. The parkland has a number of short flat footpaths, most however involve changes of elevation. There are cobbles in various locations. (Detailed access guide on website: www.nationaltrust.org.uk/lyme-park-house-and-garden). Please call for further information or to arrange a familiarisation visit.

Photography

Photography is allowed in the house without flash.
